Focuses on the materiality of hands to show the role that the hand plays in Victorian literature and culture. Unbuilt Victoria celebrates the city that is, and laments the city that could have been. For most people, resident and visitor alike, Victoria, British Columbia, is a time capsule of Victorian and Edwardian buildings. From a modest fur-trading post of the Hudson's Bay Company it grew to be the province's major trading centre. Then the selection of Vancouver as the terminus of the transcontinental railway in the 1880s, followed by a smallpox epidemic that closed the port in the 1890s, resulted in decline. Victoria succeeded in reinventing itself as a tourist destination, based on the concept of nostalgia for all things English, stunning scenery, and investment opportunities. In the modernizing boom after the Second World War attempts were made to move the city's built environment into the mainstream, but the prospect of Victoria's becoming like any other

North American city did not win public approval. Unbuilt Victoria examines some of the architectural plans that were proposed but rejected. That some of them were ever dreamed of will probably amaze, that others never made it might well be a matter of regret. Vignettes from natural settings are accompanied by a series of lessons emphasizing both practical and theoretical considerations. This edition features 23 outstanding plates from the author's Lessons on Trees. Third edition of a manual to assist solicitors and debt collectors operating in the Victorian jurisdiction. Companion volume for New South Wales is also in print. Includes chapters on commencing court actions and enforcement of judgments. Contains an index to legislation referred to, glossary of words and phrases used, and examples of precedent letters and precedent court documents. Flow charts to assist practitioners in the conduct of debt collection files are provided. Also provides a bibliography and general index. The author is a Melbourne solicitor.
